

Master of Science in Nursing (MSN)

Advanced Practice RN (APRN)

Degree Completion Program

Earn your MSN and advance your career.

APRNs can earn their master's degree with just seven courses. Do you aspire to greater career success and job mobility? Do you want to know more, do more, and keep pace with healthcare innovation?

Licensed and practicing Advanced Practice Registered Nurses (APRNs), who have been in the profession for many years without a graduate degree, can complete this program to receive their Master of Science in Nursing (MSN). Earning your MSN opens a world of opportunities, including the credentials necessary to specialize in your field or become a nurse educator.

Why Pursue a Master's Degree?

While not an exhaustive list, Nurse Journal highlights these benefits: immediate increase in salary and higher long-term earning potential; greater respect within your field and from your peers; more job opportunities; the ability to take on leadership roles; an expanded professional network; and greater personal and career satisfaction.
