Master of Science in Nursing – Nursing
Education

Make a difference in the next generation of nurses

Prepare to share your knowledge and skills with student nurses.

There is a critical need for nursing educators in the United States. As an experienced clinician and instructor, you can play a role in ensuring the quality of nursing education and future patient care.

In 2020, U.S. nursing schools turned away 80,407 qualified applicants from baccalaureate and graduate nursing programs. Most nursing schools surveyed pointed to faculty shortages as a reason for not accepting all qualified applicants into baccalaureate programs.

The Changing Role of Nurses

Shifts in treatment settings, escalations in substance use disorders and mental illness diagnoses, and the aging baby boomer generation are driving changes in the role of nurses. These shifts require nurse educators that are equipped to expand primary care training for nursing students. Your real-world experience, clinical expertise, and mentorship will enrich your students' educational experience and improve their patients' care.

Choose Rivier

As a graduate of the MSN in Nursing Education program, you'll be prepared to assume the role of nurse educator in academic and clinical practice settings, including colleges and universities, hospitals, community health agencies, and other practice settings. Offered online, this program provides a quality education in a flexible, convenient format that can be designed around your professional and personal schedules.
